What Will the Committee Do?

Whether or not the campaign committee of the state democratic executive committee will take any action with reference to the voting for or against the proposed amendments to the constitution of the state of Florida, prominent among which is the amendment familiarly known as "the drainage amendment," will not be determined until the meeting of the campaign committee early in September.

State Democratic Chairman D. U. Fletcher will leave Jacksonville August 23 for New York, where he goes to represent the democracy of Florida as a member of the committee that will officially receive the distinguished Nebraskan. Legal business requires his return to this city by September 3, and shortly after his return he will probably call a meeting of the state campaign committee.

The state democratic executive committee has left all the details for the regular election in the hands of the campaign committee, of which Mr. Fletcher is also chairman. This committee has comparatively little to do in the general election, beyond assisting the county committee in getting out the full vote, unless it takes a hand either for or against any or all of the amendments.

It will be remembered that when the last constitutional amendments were to be voted for, the state campaign committee made an active canvass in favor of the amendment raising the maximum valuation for school purposes from five mills to seven mills. At that time this was the only one of the proposed amendments that passed.

Interest this year centers particularly in the "drainage amendments," which has become the great state issue. Press matter and circulars bearing on this question have been circulated throughout all Florida, and several debates, notably that between the Hon. John S. Beard and Governor N. B. Broward, are yet to be had. By election time the voters of Florida will be familiar in every way with the proposed amendments and their effects, and there will be comparatively little for the campaign committee to do.

Until the meeting next month, however, no prediction can be made as to the probable action of the committee with reference to any of the proposed amendments.—Times-Union.

Remedy for Diarrhoea. Never Known to Fail.

"I want to say a few words for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I have used this preparation in my family for the past five years and have recommended it to a number of people in York county and have never known it to fail to effect a cure in any instance. I feel that I can not say too much for the best remedy of the kind in the world."—S. Jemison, Spring Grove, York County, Pa. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Errors of Speech.

The newspapers in Georgia and Tennessee are discussing the errors of speech now found so frequently in the newspapers. It is said that these errors are now more frequent than in former times because everything on a daily newspaper is done in such a rush and the busy writer has no time to be on the lookout for refinements and ornaments of speech.

The Nashville American takes time to point out some of the inaccuracies of language which are most frequently used by the busy reporters.

Among them are the following which we pass along:

"The widow of the late" So-and-so. Elide "the late."

"Young girl." All girls are young. Ladies or women may be young or old. When a girl ceases to be young she is a woman.

"Close proximity" is equivalent to "close nearness," which doesn't sound well.

"John Smith died here yesterday afternoon at 2 p. m." It ought not to be necessary to suggest that "afternoon" be omitted.

"Mr. Brown is an octogenarian, being 80 years old." Certainly he is, if he is 80 years old.

"The present incumbent." Many reporters commit this error. Cut out "present."

"They have suspicioned him for some time." Of course "suspicioned" is the word that should be used.

"She is a poor widow woman." A widow is usually a woman.

"The funeral obsequies will be held tomorrow. Cut out "funeral" or obsequies."

"Unconfirmed rumor." When a rumor is unconfirmed it ceases to be a rumor. "Unconfirmed rumor" is not a good expression.

"The infant child." If a child is not an infant an infant may be reasonably supposed to be a child. There are no infant adults.

"Happened to an accident." This expression is common. Nobody happens to an accident.

"Judge Smith was shown a paper." This is a case of the cart before the horse.

"There is no doubt but that." Cut out the "but."
